

Preparing for Future Development

The redevelopment of the former Walter Reed National Military Medical Center into a vibrant, mixed-use community is underway. Located near the center of the Rock Creek East 1 Livability Study area, this new development will attract pedestrians, bicyclists, and drivers to the area. These new trips will access the site via new roadway connections to the surrounding street grid.

Based on the types of proposed development that will be constructed in each portion of the site, the Livability Study will evaluate community input and other transportation data to determine the need for improved access for all modes.
